

Sharing Families-Rwanda

As promised, there is more good news to report from the Station School! When visiting the school in May, we found the students to be studious, doing well academically, healthy, and the happiest we have ever seen. The teachers were preparing the students for their highly important annual National Exams.

We stopped in each classroom and discovered most of the lessons at all levels were being taught in English. A few of the daily lessons written on the chalk board were Entrepreneurship, Concept of Disability, and Inclusion Education and Environment. This is in addition to the traditional standards like periodic tables, math, etc. To no one's surprise, our gifts of chocolate lollipops and regulation soccer balls were well received.

During our stay, the energetic all-girl drumming group performed traditional Rwandan songs, plus a beautiful poem dedicated to the Sharing Families of Saint Elizabeth of the Trinity, thanking us for the love and kindness that have changed their lives forever.

A major milestone was witnessing the long-hoped-for completion of the momentous water well project, which concluded with the installation of a water station on school grounds next to the kitchen.
